Miss Oids, of Munson & McNamara, is quite ill.

Bert Gehring is still quite ill with the typhoid fever.

Mrs. George H. Lloyd was able to be out yesterday after her recent sickness.

John Stewart and wife of Wellington are in the city. Mr. Stewart is a witness in the United States court.

Miss Hazel Schell, one of the sweet singers of Wichita, is the cashier in the newly opened dry goods store of Noyes & Son.

Mr. Betts of El Dorado, the mayor of that thriving city, was in town yesterday transacting business and shaking hands with friends.

Miss Morris of North Wichita street, a very popular young lady among the young people of the city, is one of the salesladies at the Noyes' dry goods store.

The papers are saying a great many good things about the Southern Kansas fair at Wichita which will hold from Sept. 28 to Oct. 1, next. But from our experience in the past too many good things cannot be said of the fair or of Wichita.—Sterling Champion.

The celebrated transmissio case, in which so many Wichita people are interested, will no doubt be decided at Toneska on or about the 30th of this month, at which time it is expected that Judge Riser will hand down his decision.

J. T. Johantson and wife have returned from a four weeks visit at their old Kentucky home. While absent they also visited in southern Indiana. Mrs. Johantson says that the old state still has all her former charms, and that it is needless to say that they enjoyed their trip.

Miss Minnie Simpson of Newton is in the city visiting her cousin, Mrs. L. C. Hickman and family. Miss Simpson came up to see the show today and will remain over next week to attend the fair.

Miss Simpson has some fine fancy work with her which she will exhibit.

The police officers caution all citizens not to leave their houses unguarded for a single moment today as it is expected that there will be the usual number of sneak thieves, things, etc., follow in the wake of the big show. During the time of the parade it would be well to guard all back doors.

Mrs. A. J. Applegate and Miss Helen Wisner have returned from Kingfisher, where they attended the funeral of Mr. Wisner, Miss Wisner's father. Mr. Wisner was here during the reunion and counted among the Grand Army many dear friends. He was also well known in this city.

C. M. Cherry of Kansas City was in the city yesterday, visiting old friends, and noting the various improvements since he was last here. Mr. Cherry was formerly a resident of Wichita and was the first to plant the wholesale fruit business here. He is much pleased with the progress the town has made.

A REAL LIVE ELOPEMENT.

Foreman John Lee Takes a Lay-Off and Mrs. Charles Collins Makes a Visit.

An Irate Husband Takes Their Trail and Captures Them at Pueblo, Colo.

Where the Gay Pair are Locked Up.

A real live, genuine elopement of the vintage of former days is on the tapis this week. It is one that makes a toothsome morsel for the Mother Grubdy of Wichita society. It is a long time since Wichita had an elopement and, of course, it will be related when the details are made public through the columns of papers more devoted to sensational affairs than the EAGLE. John A. Lee, the yard foreman of the Missouri Pacific, and Mrs. Charles Collins are the central figures in this drama which illustrates man's duplicity and woman's weakness.

John A. Lee had a comfortable home on Wichita street and a good job with the Missouri Pacific road that paid him $800 or $900 a year. In addition to this he had a round faced, kindly looking wife that seems, judging from her looks, to be a model wife, and a housekeeper fit for a duke. He was foreman of a gang of railroad men, and considerable of a figure in Second ward politics, belonged to two or three societies and was considered a mighty clever fellow by all who knew him. He was satisfied with all these until some time ago when the charms of Mrs. Collins faded and he began to look for a new one.

On Tuesday last John Lee secured a lay off for thirty days from the company to visit the mountains of Colorado and in addition to this got a pass to Denver. In the afternoon he boarded the train and off he went. Just before going he was talking to Charles Collins, who worked under him, when Mrs. Collins appeared on the scene with her husband's dinner. "Reddy," said she, "I want that check to pay the grocery bill," meaning the check he had received for his pay. "Lee has it," said Reddy, for Charlie has red hair and is called Reddy. It was the custom among the men to give Lee their checks to have them cashed at the bank. She then turned to Lee and said, "The check amounting to about thirty dollars. Reddy at his dinner and again went to work with a light heart, for he no doubt thought he had the best wife in the world. When the sun was sinking slowly toward the horizon he picked up a lot of kindling wood and notwithstanding the day's toil he walked home whistling a merry tune and feeling good in anticipation of a hot supper prepared by the dimpled hands of the queen of his humble but happy castle. When he reached the house the dinner dishes were unwashed, the bed was not made up, and the wife's old dress and skirts formed a perfect letter "O" on the floor where she had stepped out of them and then he smelt a good-sized mouse. Upon investigation he found that her trunk was gone and then he smelt a still larger sized mouse. With the speed of John Gilpin and his famous steed he flew towards the various depots, and at the Rock Island he found that his wife had bought a ticket to Hasted. It then began to dawn on him that there was something wrong in the departure of his boss and his wife, so he went into close consultation with Mr. Maguire, the roadmaster, with the result that he had secured a pass to Denver. He took the first train in hopes of heading her off, and finally succeeded at Pueblo, according to a dispatch to the EAGLE last night, where he secured their arrest.

After awakening at least twenty families on Wichita and Water streets, and a hard tussle with that many dogs, a reporter for the EAGLE at last located the home of John Lee, between Third and Central on North Wichita street, at 11 o'clock last night. After a vigorous knocking Mr. Maguire finally located his elusive wife, an unsuspecting wife, and she opened her door with a kindly "how do you do," bid the reporter enter.

"Where is John?" asked the reporter. "He is visiting his old home in Illinois," was the answer of the unsuspecting wife. "I am sorry to inform you that he is in jail in Pueblo having eloped with Reddy Collins' wife," was the reportorial reply.

This caused the poor woman to bring the palm of her hand down on her knee in an exclamation of distress, while a big lump gathered in her throat and a tear glistened in her eye.

"What did I tell you, father?" said the poor woman as she saw a venerable head peep out from under a blanket in the next room. It was a sad sight indeed to see the poor woman, and sadder still to see the look of horror and surprise on the wrinkled face of her aged sire.

"I know all now," said Mrs. Lee. "I was at Millerton a few days ago and I was told that John was going to see another woman on the West Side, near the school house. Their description of her answered the description of Mrs. Collins, but I didn't believe that John was unfaithful to me. Oh, yes, I see it all now. Whenever I asked him to let me go anywhere he grumbled, but this time he never uttered a word of objection. In the contrary he seemed anxious that I should go, and when I said I would be back in the evening he persuaded me to stay till next day. I told him that I would be back the next morning, and he told me not to come back till night. Oh, yes, I see it all now. And a tear rolled down the face of the poor, deserted wife, that would harrow a soul of Adam."

"When he left," said she, "he took his time and all the money we had except $15. I took that up town, and I paid the butcher $10, and $4.75 to another man, and didn't pay him all I owed him either, and now I have only 25 cents on earth. Oh, what will me and my poor old father do now? And again another tear rolled down the poor woman's cheek. "When I was putting his vest in the valise," she continued, "a fifty cent piece rolled out and I took it. He told me that he should have that as he was going on a long journey and he needed all the money he had. A strange idea came into my head and I was about to say yes, John you need it for Mrs. Collins, but I caught myself and didn't want to hurt his feelings by saying it besides I didn't believe he was unfaithful to me. John was a great hand to be out late and several people told me they saw him going over to the West Side late at night but I didn't believe John was doing anything wrong. I see it all now and again a big tear rolled down her cheek. John Butler, a good natured warm hearted Irishman, who accompanied the reporter, shook his head gravely whenever he saw a tear coursing down the poor woman's cheek and would say, by god, he is a name man to serve his poor wife that way. It is the intention of Charlie Collins to prosecute Lee to the fullest extent of the law, but it is also his intention to never again take up with his unfaithful wife. Fortunately neither of the victims have any children.

A SIMPLE SUGGESTION.

To the Editor of the Eagle.
When the United States poses as the philanthropist of nations, it is not a terribly black blot on her escutcheon that those numerous railroad accidents with their accompanying loss of life cannot be reduced to a minimum of their present number? Is her humanity not large enough to prompt or her intellect great enough to devise some means to that end?

That this can be done there is no question. It is proven by the comparatively few accidents which occur on European railways. Leaving generalities and striking home, let us consider the accident which occurred on the A. T. & S. F. near Osage City a day or so ago. What was the underlying cause of that accident? Cupidity. The lowest passion in human nature. And wherever money is at stake there it will be found, hovering like a buzzard over its prey. It is a thing incarnate, cold, calculating and bloodthirsty; ousting every human instinct.

Why an express company might as well load down its car with dynamite or nitroglycerine as to put a million of dollars in a train loaded with human freight. It is equally as dangerous; because it arouses more or less of that diabolical passion in the soul of everyone who knows of it, and neither human passion nor nature's force care for the destruction in their way.

It is an open, palpable, acknowledged fact, that the presence of that currency was the cause of that accident and its results. But what of it? Are four or five lives (it might have been a hundred) worth a million dollars? Is it at all probable that the next time there are a few dollars in currency to be shipped, a railroad company will see it out on an "special" with extra precautions against accidents because of this late unpleasantness?

It might be supposed that a "special," that is a train that is not on the schedule, that does or does not carry passengers according to the purpose for which it is ordered out, was a mountain to be moved. For absolute murder, life long suffering, desolate homes and broken hearts which care a corporation so that its dividends show up all right.

Through its treasury and charter only can its "bowels of compassion" be reached. Human life is generally admitted, is the most sacred thing in this broad world. By what mighty power is this sacred thing to be bulwarked? The law? What are those laws? Who makes them? By the way, it is said there are no laws in Kansas. That must be a miserable calamity howl.

REPUBLICAN ENTHUSIASM.

Furley is in the far northern portion of this country, and being so far from the city it is not often that the Republican held out there. But the spark of American patriotism is still warm in Lincoln township, as evidenced by a handsome pole and flag just swung out at Furley. The pole is as straight and symmetrical as some of the handsome girls of that township, and at this time a flag waves from the top. It is a flag of pole and flag and it is raised by Republicans who dearly love the institutions of this country, and they say that as long as that flag kisses the breeze that Lincoln township will be Republican and not Cossack. The Republican candidates went out to Furley on Wednesday evening and held a Republican meeting at the school house which filled every seat in the building, all the open windows and standing room. It was an old fashioned meeting, full of good cheer for the county ticket and patriotism for Republican institutions. Hon. Randolph Hatfield was the main speaker of the evening. His speech was full of fire and vim, and received every indication of commendation from his hearers. He took up and fully discussed the free silver issue and enlarged upon the money question at great length. He was followed by Senator Bentley in a speech of about an hour in duration. John D. Davis, the popular candidate for county attorney, followed in a few well chosen remarks. "Take notice," said the speaker, "the free silver issue is enlarged upon the money question at great length. He was followed by Senator Bentley in a speech of about an hour in duration. John D. Davis, the popular candidate for county attorney, followed in a few well chosen remarks."

TABERNACLE MEETING.

Brother Martin preached a clear and powerful sermon last night on Proverbs 11:30. "He that winneth souls is wise." "Man is something else besides a spiritual being." The preacher discussed the different Pentecost views, particularly "Material Pentecost" and "Ideal Pentecost." He then proved clearly that man has a soul, and that man's soul proceeds from God. The sermon was divided into the following heads: 1. Characteristics and qualities of the soul. It is immaterial and spiritual; it is immortal; it never rusts nor decays; it is indestructible. 2. The soul does exist after death. 3. The soul is in a lost condition without God; this is a deplorable fact; if the soul is not lost Jesus never would have died to save it. It is ours, as saved people, to win these lost souls to Christ—a fearful responsibility—a glorious privilege. The preacher closed with several very touching illustrations, then explained briefly the qualifications for soul winning. We must have power—we get it when we receive the gift of the Holy Ghost. The altar was offered and a very precious service followed. I wish to mention here the very profitable service conducted by Rev. R. L. Marsh in the all-day meeting last Friday. The reporter was absent during Brother Marsh's hour, and was not privileged to mention it, but lost a very precious service.

AN IMMENSE MEETING.

The Bright Young Republican Leader of the Big Seventh Ward Held a Big Crowd at the Gas-Bell.

Garfield hall was packed with an audience, last night that was a credit to any meeting of national reputation, to hear the Republican candidate for congress from the Seventh district, Chester L. Long. When the gentleman appeared in the hall he was received with a great applause, which continued for several minutes. When introduced he said in substance:

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN—I propose to speak of a few things concerning the Republican party and whether this party has ever done anything for the "plain people," as designated in the Omaha platform.

The Republican party has ever been the party of the plain people and its legislation has been for the plain people. The Fifty-first congress was a business congress and recognizing that a practical age, legislated in a practical way. Party legislatures for the people and is supposed to represent the character of the people and its business. There are two classes of people belonging to parties, one that believes in this government and directs its legislation for the interests of the masses. The other believes that all things are going to destruction and we are on the verge of moral, material and political ruin. I belong to the former class. It has been charged and has been repeatedly asserted that the Fifty-first congress was a billion dollar congress. Though since the last Democratic congress you very seldom hear this charge, as the first session of the Fifty-second congress exceeded the Fifty-first in expenditures some $3,000,000 of dollars. He reverted to that the necessities and wants of this great nation were steadily increasing and as he had said this is a billion dollar congress and this is a billion dollar nation, so this change of extravagance is not making sense. He has ever been the custom of the Democracy to charge things against the Republican party, but time always brings the evidence that the Republican party was right. His opponent for congress said the Republicans had not made or passed any laws for the people. Let us see what the Fifty-first congress did in making laws. First there was the legislation regulating meats, establishing the inspection law, issuing certificates as to the character and quality of meats and opening the markets of Germany, Russia, etc., to the pork of Kansas, after the meats of this country had been refused admittance to other countries, etc. Under this law the price of meats had advanced and markets increased and all this in the direct interest of the producers. Second, the charge had been made that the circulating medium was restricted. During the years embracing this change the circulating medium was greater than at any other period, but was greater than the then or at any other time in our history but not enough to establish business, buy railroads, and take control of personal interests. It was enough for all practical purposes in business. We have increased the circulating medium by the law insuring the treasurer to purchase four and a half million ounces of silver per month and every month in our hands the circulating medium. This is practically endorsed by Democrats as when a bill was prepared regulating this law and proposing a change it was rejected by a Democratic house, and thus the Fifty-second congress, Democratic, virtually endorsed this law of the Republicans and admitting it was correct. Under the price of money a dollar would be equal to its debt paying power. No government ever did or ever can say what the purchasing power of money shall be, especially paper money. The Alliance announces in favor of free silver coinage, but in reality are for paper money without intrinsic value, and here he quoted from speeches and writings of Senators and that he, the representative from the Seventh district, was not only opposed to silver coinage, but also to the coinage of gold above 25 cents and all above this denomination shall or is to be redeemed by the government in the issuing money or certificates on the basis of the supposed amount of metals lying in our mines and mountains. Here the speaker made the scheme so absurd and illustrated the idea with such telling effect, showing its result, that the house applauded for many minutes. He said if we issue money on this estimate we are not only making a mockery of the laboring man, his health, his ability to perform labor, the reasonable time he might be supposed to live, the muscular wear of his arms and all the attributes he may possess for manual labor, and issue money on what he is worth. He then reverted to the disability pension bill passed by a Republican congress and showed how this helped the country and increased the circulating medium, and asked was this done for the money power of Wall street or the plutocrats of the country? No; it was passed for a higher, nobler purpose—to assist those who sacrificed their lives and perpetuated this grand government of ours. It is a law giving to men who carried the physical labor, and then not discriminating in favor of those wounded or disabled in war, but who suffered from inability accruing since, and it was right and just and was passed on a higher basis than mere political or mercenary motives. The anti-trust law was another act of the Republicans, and this prevented trusts and cartels and kept the competition opposing the Republican party any nothing about it. This law prevents lawyers combining here in Kansas to regulate fees. Doctors form combining on the price of goods. This is a beneficial law and of incalculable good. The laws of the Republican party are for the interest of the people. The Republican party is a party of action. Above all was the great tariff law, when first enacted a great howl went up and the charge was made that living would be higher. The prices of all necessities increased and etc. and it was the cause of our defeat in 1890, but the working and effect of this measure will be speaking of another time.
